Subdued Soviets mourn leader's death

MOSCOW (AP) — The new Soviet leaders, faced with a transfer of Kremlin power following the death of President Leonid Brezhnev, on Thursday named former KGB chief Yuri Andropov to head a committee planning a state funeral for the man who ruled the Soviet Union for 18 years.

They announced that Brezhnev would be buried Monday beside the Kremlin wall on Red Square and that a four-day period of national mourning would begin Friday.

The Communist Party and government, indicating Brezhnev's foreign policy would be continued, reiterated his policy to "ensure detente and disarmament" with the West, but warned it would deal a "crushing retaliatory strike" if threatened by attack.

Brezhnev, 75, died Wednesday of an apparent heart attack. The announcement was withheld for 26½ hours but when it was made, black-trimmed flags quickly were raised around Moscow. Public reaction to Brezhnev's death was surprisingly subdued.

PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN, in a condolence letter, called Brezhnev "one of the world's most important figures for nearly two decades," and said he looked forward to working with the new Kremlin leadership "toward an improved relationship with the Soviet Union."

White House officials said it was highly unlikely Reagan would be at the funeral Monday, but that a high-level U.S. delegation would attend.

No one was immediately named to succeed Brezhnev as president, or to take over the more important post as chief of the Communist Party. But Western experts tend to believe the power vacuum will be filled in the short run by a collective leadership including Andropov, 68, and long-time Brezhnev aide Konstantin Chernenko, 71.

By naming Andropov to head the committee planning an elaborate funeral ceremony, the leadership immediately put Andropov forward as a leading candidate.

SOME SOURCES said Chernenko ultimately might take over, but that Moscow Communist Party boss Viktor Grishin could emerge as a compromise. Another man once considered in line for a leading post, Andrei Kirilenko, is said to be in poor health and to have retired from the Kremlin leadership.

The Soviet Central Committee, with more than 300 members, formally votes on a new party chief and the parliamentary leadership chooses the president.

But until the succession question is settled, Western analysts believe a collective leadership drawn from the 12-man Politburo will govern. Defense Minister Dimitri Ustinov, Premier Nikolai Tikhonov and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were expected to play key roles in the succession.

In the interim, the funeral committee chaired by Andropov decided Brezhnev will be buried on Red Square after lying in state for three days. Tass said the party Central Committee had ordered four days of mourning beginning Friday, and the closing of all primary and secondary schools for the burial.

IT ALSO ORDERED state enterprises throughout the country to stop work for five minutes at the time of the burial, gun salvos to be fired at that moment in Moscow, all provincial capitals and several other Soviet cities, and factories and other workplaces to sound their sirens for three minutes.

Andropov's committee decided that Brezhnev's body will be viewed by the Soviet public and foreign dignitaries in the columbed hall of the House of Soviets in downtown Moscow.

Vladimir Lenin and Josef Stalin

also lay in state in the same building, which is one block from the Bolshoi Theater.

The only other leader of the Soviet Union, Nikita S. Khrushchev, was ousted by Brezhnev in 1964. But he left office in disgrace and was quietly buried in Moscow's Novodevichy Cemetery in 1970.

Brezhnev will become the 10th Soviet hero, including Lenin and Stalin, laid to rest in Red Square along the Kremlin's northeast wall. The ashes remains of more than 100 others, including Alexei Kosygin, are buried inside the wall itself.

THE DEATH elicited a broad range of reaction from former U.S. presidents and senior officials.

It will be a "Championship Weekend" this weekend as Bowling Green's football team — led by tailback Chip Otten (left, number 31) — and the Falcon hockey team — led by high-scoring center Dan Kane (above, with arms raised) — lead two first-place teams on the road to their championships.

Some benefit from proposed changes at Union

by Erin Esmont
staff reporter

Despite opposition from the Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate Student Senate, the proposed changes at the Union have received support from groups that currently use the Union.

Tom Misuraca, director of University Activities Organization programming, said he believes the proposed changes could be beneficial to their organization.

"This could very well be a blessing in disguise," he said. "We are kind of tucked away up here on the third floor, and the proposal to move UAO to the Cardinal Room would provide greater accessibility with students."

By moving the UAO offices to the Cardinal Room, the space on the third floor would be used for classrooms.

Kenneth Close, director of the Food Services at the Union, said he was unaware of the proposed changes until he was told that he would be losing some rooms in the relocation.

"PEOPLE WHO ARE used to going to the Cardinal Room will lose out. There is no plans to relocate the Cardinal Room, yet it has not been making money for the Union," he said.

"I can relate to students concerned with moving classrooms into the Union. The Union is basically a social meeting area," Rick Reeder, UAO president said. "Personally, I don't think the proposal is too bad. Yet we do worry about student activities since we do program them."

The University Union Advisory Board, the group that prepared the proposal, also made recommendations which would involve moving the Apple Lab into the Side Door Entertainment.

"Nothing has been finalized to put the Apple Lab in the Side Door," Ralph Gillespie, director of the Side Door said.

THE SIDE DOOR has been looking for alternative programming options in the event that the proposal is passed, Gillespie said.

"No matter what, we will find some place for this entertainment facility," he said.

The relocation plan began last spring when money was appropriated from the state to renovate West Hall into a mass communications center.

According to Robert McGeein, director of academic planning, the physical relocation must occur in a way that will not impair academic programs. For this reason, West Hall cannot be occupied during the 18 months that have been set aside for the construction, he said.

The Union Advisory Board began researching the possibility of relocating to the Union.

RAYMOND LAAKANIEMI, associate professor of journalism and a member of the Union Advisory Board, said that the proposal "was compiled keeping mind that academics are our first priority."

Limited job opportunities exist for women with higher education

by Laurie Madden
staff reporter

While it is true that the number of women graduating with high college degrees is increasing, the number of positions available for these women is not increasing proportionally, Dr. Karl Vogt, interim vicepresident of Academic Affairs said.

Vogt discussed the present and future status of faculty women at Wednesday's Women's Caucus luncheon.

"I guarantee you there will be a decrease in faculty next year," Vogt said. This will mean a reduction in employment opportunities in both male and female future faculty, he said.

"The University must grow, to increase available positions for women," Vogt said.

"Vogt explained that declining state population and declining number of high school graduates seeking a college education, are the main basis for his predictions. He said the percentage of Ohio high school graduates that continue their education is 10 percent less than the national average.

"I THINK it is reasonable to say by 1990 enrollment will be 10 percent less than it is today," he said.

Vogt said promotion of the University is needed to remedy the situation. "We have to go out and get them," he said.

Regarding faculty women's position today, Vogt said, "I feel confident in saying the salaries of women are equitable to men holding the same position in the same department."

Presently six percent of all professors at the University are women. This totals for 15 out of 245. The majority of women are categorized as instructors, totaling 51 percent, Vogt said.

Vogt also made faculty comparisons using average salaries. The average salary for a professor is $34,166 for men and $33,566 for women.

THE AVERAGE instructor salary for men is $17,509 and $16,857 for women, he said.

"The picture for women participation will not change much in the next 10 years," Vogt said.

Vogt said one reason for this is that women have not been traditionally attracted to programs that are growing, such as business. Many of the few women that are in business with graduate degrees are going into firms, he said.

Regarding present faculty, Vogt said, a better recognition of performance system is needed.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — From a space shuttle launch pad 184 miles above Earth, the exuberant crew of Columbia sent the first of two communications satellites spinning into orbit Thursday. With that, the era of commercial space flight was open for business.

It happened just eight hours after the shuttle cut through blue skies over the Atlantic and settled in for its fifth flight.

Mission specialist Joseph Lenoir started the satellite spinning, triggering a 90-minute countdown for SBS-C, the spacecraft belonging to Satellite Business Systems of McLean, Va.

"You got a lot of happy people down here, you guys do good work," radioed Mission Control.

The satellite, a 3½-ton cylinder that will be used for video, data and voice communications, was spinning at 52 revolutions per minute when it was released to an orbit of its own.

A few minutes later, his colleague, Joseph Allen, radioed "We still have that beautiful satellite in sight. It's traveling just below us."

NASA was getting paid for the shuttle's task, but not very much.

The Veterans Day launch was the first ever of four men in one spacecraft. With NASA's customers paying attention, Columbia left exactly on time for its five-day journey.

"It was as near perfect as we could probably expect," said launch director Al O'Hara. "It couldn't get any better."

Flight director Tommy Holloway said the flight was going exceptionally well and that the crewmen were "in good spirits, enjoying themselves and doing a very excellent job."

"It was a fine ride, I can tell you," command-r Vance Brand said of the ship's fifth liftoff in 19 months.

With him are pilot Robert Overmyer, 46, and astronaut-scientists Lenoir, 43, and Allen, 45. These three are rookies, but Brand, 51, had been in space before. He returned unconscious from the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz flight when fuel fumes leaked into the capsule after it splashed into the Pacific Ocean.

IN THE SHUTTLE'S 60-foot long cargo bay at launch were two nearly identical satellites. One belonged to SBS — a creation of Aetna Insurance, IBM and Comsat General; the other was owned by Telesat of Canada Ltd. Together the firms paid NASA about $17 million to have their spacecraft launched from the shuttle instead of using a more expensive one-use Delta rocket. (NASA estimated the cost of the flight at $250 million.)

Forty-five minutes after ejection, trailing the shuttle by 12 or 13 miles, a "perigee rocket motor" on the SBS-C was to boost the satellite into an egg-shaped orbit. On Saturday, a second motor firing will circularize the orbit at 22,300 miles — the height at which satellite speed matches the spin of Earth and allows stationary communications.

Allen will deploy Anik C, the Telesat satellite in similar fashion Friday.

On Sunday, Allen and Lenoir will take the first spacewalk by an American since 1974. They will don EVA suits for a 3 hour 25 minute tour of the payload bay where they will test their ability to do repair work in space.

FOR LAUNCH, the four astronauts wore NASA blue-cotton coveralls instead of the awkward brown pressure suits required on America's 35 previous man-in-space missions. Seconds after liftoff, Mission Control said simply, "Columbia now in space for the fifth time."

Columbia had been in orbit nearly four hours when President Reagan spoke by phone with the astronauts. "It's a beautiful world that we are going over," Brand said. "We are very proud up here to be representing America."

So routine had shuttle flights become, that the number of spectators was estimated at 120,000.

Coming to stadium still is a necessity for BG's I-A status

One day. One team. One game. Those are all that stand between Bowling Green's football team and its first outright title since 1964, and its first title of any kind since 1965.

With a defeat of the Eastern Michigan Hurons, the Falcons will become the champions of the Mid-American Conference, earning a trip to the California Bowl on December 18; the first Bowl appearance for any BG team.

Too say that the Falcons are the favorites for the game is an understatement. Eastern is 1-7, having just ended what had been the nation's longest losing streak.

BG is 6-2, losing two games on turnovers-turned-into-touchdowns. The Falcons are also 4-0 at home, and they know they have their own destinies in their hands.

Another destiny which will be decided Saturday is that of the University's average attendance for the season - a major stumbling-block in the team's attempt to be re-classified into Division I-A.

So far, the attempts which were made in the previous home games have been excellent - aside from a relatively small crowd on Homecoming Day. But one game still remains, and it could prove to be a game in which attendance is as important as the final score.

This weekend's final home game will be the last of the "rights of autumn" for many of the University's football fans (except those who plan to attend the California Bowl), and we feel that everyone should attend to send the team on the road in fashion.

If you have never attended a football game this season, this is one you should not miss.

If you have attended every football game this season, you should pay tribute to yourself and not miss the championship the team and the fans have earned.

The students, faculty, staff and citizens who suffered through losing seasons over the last few years are about to witness something the likes of which hasn't been seen here since many of the students were preschoolers - a championship in football.

Not wanting to attend such an event is incomprehensible, regardless of homework loads, weather, or other games which are playing on television.

We who have been at the University for four years are going to witness something that very few students have witnessed. We are going to witness a victory which will give us - in our stay here - championships in almost all major sports (not to mention championships in non-revenue sports such as track, cross country, swimming and gymnastics).

Our basketball team received a bid to the NIT in 1980, and was co-champion of the MAC in 1981. We haven't had to suffer through bad times for Coach John Weinert's team.

Our hockey team has - in the last four years - had its longest losing streak (1979-80) and its worst overall record (1980-81), but Coach Jerry York's squad made the return to greatness last season, bringing the University the Central Collegiate Hockey Association championship. And they are currently ranked second in the nation. They, too, will be a part of "Championship Weekend" when they take on Ohio State at home tonight.

And now, Coach Denny Stolz, much-maligned during his stay as football coach, is seeing his team complete its transition into champions. We four-year students have seen a season which at times verged on futility (1979), a season in which we lost by the closest average margin in the country (1980), a season in which a slow start seemed to ruin the season as soon as it began (except for that glorious 38-0 win over Toledo on Homecoming, 1981). And now, if all goes as expected, Stolz and his team will also become champions.

As often as many fans here have criticized Bowling Green athletics, they are still going to be honored with another group of champions. The four-year and three-year students who have seen all the hard times should go for their just reward.

The first- and second-year students should attend to see what we hope is the start of a championship tradition in football, and the continuation of one in hockey.

And faculty, staff and Bowling Green residents should attend the game to erase the cynicism which has undoubtedly arisen from years of struggles.

This is it; let's relish it, and if things go right, we can have a real POST-game party.

LETTERS

Sardines floating in oil and hard-dough bread are not a particularly exciting breakfast. And curried goat will never be my favorite entree. But I was one of the lucky ones during my year in Jamaica; I never went hungry.

In a Third World country which doesn't have food stamps and reasonably workable welfare programs, you see a lot of beggars. They come up to you on the street, clothes hanging lank on bony bodies, and "beg a ten-cent." Even more sad, you see many boys with eyes and faces much older than the rest of them. It takes a while to figure out why a Jamaican boy's body may look a little peculiar, not matching his American counterpart. Slowly it dawns: he's a bit stunted; his growth has been retarded by malnutrition; he'll never reach "normal" size.

I met boys thrown into prison whose crime was stealing a few mangoes or bananas because they were hungry. And I had to acknowledge that real and prolonged hunger was not in my repertoire of experiences.

Perhaps fasting is as close as I've come to identifying with the hungry of the world. I don't enjoy doing - does anybody? - but I think it's good for me. At least temporarily, I have a heightened sense of what most of the world's people feel continually.

I'll be fasting next week, especially on Thursday, for Oxfam-America. Oxfam's choice of November 18 for its National Fast for a World Harvest is deliberate and symbolically appropriate. It's just a week before Thanksgiving, the day we celebrate our country's bounty at dining room tables groaning with food.

But elsewhere people will be groaning with hunger. What can we do about it? One response is to join the hundreds on campus who will be participating in Oxfam-America fast next week and donating meal coupons or money in marked containers in the cafeterias. It's a good way to sensitize ourselves to the hungry of the world. It's good way to share our bounty. And it's a good way to give a hollow-eyed, empty-bellied boy or girl in a Third World country reason for thanksgiving as well.

Fraternity brothers are individuals not clones

"They are responsible if their fraternal pledge stands strong."

What are you saying, Miss Hostetter? Should joining a fraternity mean the loss of one's identity? Of course not!

I am writing in response to the article by Sally Hostetter, which appeared in the Nov. 2 issue of The BG News.

Whether or not justice has been done in the outcome of the case, is not the issue I wish to focus upon. What I would like to address is the unfair treatment of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and its relevance to each and every one of us.

A fraternity should not be held responsible for the actions of each of its members. While fraternities are based on brotherhood, each consist of a brotherhood of individuals. Members do not get brainwashed and become carbon copies of each other. Each member retains his individuality. Why then, are fraternity members continuously treated as part of a group rather than as individual persons?

When a resident of, let's say, Rodgers, does something against campus regulations and is referred to in the paper, he is not labelled as a "Rodger's resident." And he should not be. His actions do not reflect the ideals of the whole. Therefore it follows that when members of a fraternity screw up, the chapter should not be held responsible. Though the brotherhood is strong, the actions of its members do not always reflect its ideals.

The fraternity should not have been on trial along with the individuals in this case. Where does it end? Not with fraternities and other social organizations, that is for sure. Stereotyping extends throughout society. Many groups are looked down upon because of historical acts of their ancestors or current actions of a portion of their groups. Is this practice fundamentally right? You are damn right it is not!

I may be a bit idealistic, but I believe that a person should be looked at for what he or she is, rather than for what organization, race, sex, or nationality to which one might belong. Along the same lines, a group should be viewed for what it is, rather than for what a few of its members might have done.

This article might not express the views of my fraternity. It contains my personal opinions. Please accept it as such.

Professor misquoted; clarifies statements

According to an article on the American Anti-Vivisection Society which appeared in The BG News on Nov. 2, 1982, I allegedly stated that there are no laws that govern how animals are treated behind closed laboratory doors. That statement is not true. In fact, there are federal laws as well as professional, scientific, and ethical guidelines that unequivocally require human care and treatment of research animals, even behind closed doors. Animal researchers at this institution fully comply with all such laws and guidelines which insure that research animals are not subjected to any unjustifiable pain or distress in the pursuit of scientific knowledge and the potential amelioration of the human condition.

Reader questions party regulations

As a student living off campus, the issue that concerns me is "party permits." Is it not true that we must receive a permit to have a party? Is this going to affect students only or will this affect all residents of Bowling Green?

Am I correct in saying that if a student is ticketed for having a party, they must not only appear at Bowling Green's Municipal Court but also at BGSU's Standards and Procedures?

I was at an off-campus party where eight of my friends received $55 fines each. Clearly Bowling Green's police system has sufficient laws to protect residents of Bowling Green against loud parties without placing students in "double jeopardy."

I am baffled on the reasoning behind prosecuting a student on campus when this has nothing to do with the University's property.

Congratulations given to the MAC Champion Falcons

To Coach Sink and the Women's Cross-Country Team,

I would like to congratulate you on your fine effort Saturday in retaining the Mid American Conference Cross-Country title for the third consecutive year. Your performance was outstanding, especially considering the fact that you were not running up to your high expectations; and yet had enough B.G. pride to pass several opponents at the finish to earn a one-point victory.

Sincere congratulations on his receiving coach of the year honors for the third time is extend to coach Sink. I was particularly pleased that coach Sink was bestowed this honor because I firmly believe that he did more coaching this year than ever before to prepare and convince his team that they would retain their Championship this year.

Special recognition is extended to Jodie Welly, Terri Nolan, Jennie Groves, Mary Zweber, Hellen Poe, Laura Murphy, Corine Smith, Pat Panchak, Pam Panchak, Lori Archer, Barb Scott, Stephanie Eaton, Robin Richard, Terri Gindlesberger, Nancy Marusha, Laura Redd, Bev Lynch, Nita Renfrow, Sara Collas, Nadine Verga and Barb Schick, for their total support of the seven runners that competed. Without your encouragement it is unlikely that the outcome would have been the same. The Championship was truly a team victory.

The most impressive occurrence of the day was not the race, but how you handled yourself after the race. Though disappointed in the face of defeat, there was no second guessing or resentment just praise for the opposing teams. And yet, with the breath of victory there was no boasting or gloating, just sheer delight and happiness in the satisfaction of accomplishing your goal. It has been a pleasure to have the opportunity to work with you fine young women this season. Congratulations again on your MAC victory and best of luck in the District Qualifier, and throughout the year.

Alumni sponsor undergraduate research grants

by Bernadette Bednar

For the first time at the University, undergraduate students have the opportunity to receive research grants.

Sponsored and funded by the Alumni Association, the Alumni Undergraduate Research Award has been established by the Alumni Board of Trustees to encourage undergraduate students to pursue self-initiated projects in their respective fields.

According to Larry Weiss, director of Alumni Affairs, the Alumni Association has been looking to get involved in various student efforts. "We thought this might be a way to get involved with students other than just awarding financial aid (scholarships)," Weiss said.

THE ALUMNI Association offers book and merit scholarships to undergraduate students, but this is the first time an undergraduate research award program has been initiated. Weiss said two or three years ago, a student in the chemistry department was doing cancer research and the Alumni Association was approached to provide financial assistance. This year they decided to allocate $2700 in establishing a research award to aid other undergraduates in projects which would otherwise not be conducted.

"It was brought to our attention that undergraduate students were doing exciting things and we wanted to get involved," Weiss said.

Under the direction of Vice Provost for Research, Dr. Thomas Cobb, application guidelines were established.

According to the application, applicants must be enrolled at the University, have completed at least 30 semester hours of coursework and have a grade point average of at least 3.0. Students should have the support of a faculty sponsor, and upper-division applicants who propose a major project under the direction of a faculty sponsor will be given preference.

"PROJECTS SHOULD be completed by May," Cobb said. "We want to have a report in the spring (on the success of the project) to give to the Alumni Board of Trustees," he said. The Board of Trustees will then decide if the program is to continue.

Individual awards will be limited to $500 per applicant. Cobb said rather than give out many small awards, the committee judging applications will look for a few good projects.

"We are looking for four or five distinctive projects where a few hundred dollars would make the difference whether or not the project goes," he said.

The amounts of the individual awards will be based on an itemized budget submitted by the applicant. Recipients will be assigned temporary University accounts from which previously authorized expenditures can be made. These accounts will be valid for a period of six months from the date of the award. No cash awards will be given.

ITEMS THAT may be covered by the grants include, but are not limited to, expendable materials (such as film, biology materials, etc.); use or purchase of permanent equipment (such purchases would become property of the University); travel, temporary employment of a person with special skills needed to complete the project and other miscellaneous expenses.

Applications, which consist of an application form, a detailed project description, an itemized budget and letters of support (including a personal resume, examples of previous work or any materials relevant to the project) will be reviewed by an ad hoc advisory committee of at least three persons appointed by the vice provost for research. Applications will be judged on academic merit, contribution to the selected discipline, qualifications of the applicant, likelihood of success and impact on the University. Applicants may be requested to appear before the committee to further explain their project. Recipients of these awards will be notified within about two weeks after the Nov. 15 deadline, Cobb said.

THE PROGRAM is in a trial period, Weiss said. Each year, the Alumni

Board of Trustees will review the success of the program and make a decision whether or not it will continue.

So far, only a few students have submitted application materials for the research grants. Announcements for the award were published in the Monitor, a faculty and staff publication, and also given to all department chairs, but Cobb said he didn't think the information was getting to the students.

"Whether they (the Alumni Association) continue the program depends on its success this year," Cobb said, adding that new programs usually start slowly and take time to gain support.

Students interested in this program should contact the Office of the Graduate College or their respective academic department. All application materials are due in the Office of the Graduate College, 120 McFall Center, on or before 5:00 p.m., Nov. 15, 1982.

tors, and others who simply are not performing," he said.

BECAUSE OF THIS he said he is afraid achievers are not getting rewarded as much as "some high paid non-achievers."

Vogt said each department should set up and define faculty expectations. "I believe you can identify those faculty members that are performing well in each department."

Women's Caucus is a university organization dedicated to helping organize and articulate women on campus. Dr. Kathleen Howard-Merriam, associate professor of political science and caucus member, said.

Green Sheet

Vol. XV, No. 7

Bowling Green State University

November 12, 1982

The finest works of art produced by University faculty members are now on display in the annual School of Art Faculty Exhibition in the McFall Center Gallery. The works on display include watercolor and oil paintings, glass works, weaving, sculptures, and graphics. Hours for the exhibit, which will continue through Dec. 5, are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 2-5 p.m. on weekends.

Met Opera stars to perform

Metropolitan opera stars Sandra Warfield and James McCracken will perform as part of the University's Festival Series at 8 p.m. Friday (Nov. 19) in Koblacker Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center.

Tickets are $5 and $7 for students (depending on seat location), and $7 and $9 for all others. Tickets can be purchased between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. weekdays at the Moore Musical Arts Center Box Office, or they can be reserved by calling the 24-hour ticket hotline at 372-0171.

The mezzo-soprano and the tenor made their Metropolitan Opera debuts in 1953. Since their marriage two years later, they have sung in opera productions throughout the United States and Europe, and have performed as soloists with most of the world's orchestras.

Warfield debuted as one of the two peasant girls in "Le Nozze di Figaro." Her progress to stardom was quick, and after only two years she had the honor of opening the Metropolitan Opera season as La Cieca in "La Gioconda." Later that same year, she appeared as Ulrica in "Un Ballo in Maschera."

McCracken, internationally renowned as one of this generation's greatest performers, has had a unique status in the music world since 1960 when he became the first U.S. born singer to undertake the demanding and difficult role of Verdi's "Othello." He made his 1953 debut in the five-word part of Pargiel in "La Bohème" and remained on the company's roster for four years, singing similar roles before deciding to leave the company to build a reputation as a dramatic tenor in Europe.

McCracken found success in Germany, and by 1963 he became one of the few artists in the history of the Metropolitan Opera to make a second debut, returning as a world-recognized star to sing "Othello."

He is also well-known and well-respected for his award winning recordings. His recording of "Othello" won the coveted Grad Prix du Disques, and his 1974 recording of "Carmen" won the Grammy Award for outstanding operatic recording of that year.

This past season, he joined Beverly Sills and other renowned artists in a gala performance at the Kennedy Center honoring George London.

The two opera singers are also the authors of a book, entitled "A Star Family."

During their Bowling Green performance, the couple will sing duets and will perform as soloists. The program will include excerpts from "Turandot," "I Pagliacci" and "Carmen."

Green Sheet

Green Sheet is produced by the Bowling Green State University Office of Public Relations in cooperation with The BG News.

The next issue of the Green Sheet will be published Dec. 3, and it will be the last issue for the semester. The deadline for submitting information to be listed in that issue is noon Wednesday, Dec. 1.

All events must be submitted in writing to the Green Sheet editor, 806 Administration Building. In the event of space limitations, those events submitted at the earliest date will be given preference.

Senior Marie Cletorino is serving as assistant editor this year; junior Tom Hisek is serving as calendar editor.

University Theatre Presents:

Shaw comedy Major Barbara

The final four performances of Major Barbara, one of George Bernard Shaw's most provocative comedies, will be presented by the University Theatre at 8 p.m. Nov. 17-20 in the Main Auditorium of University Hall. There will also be a 3 p.m. matinee performance on Nov. 20.

The story follows munitions maker Andrew Undershaft in his holy mission to make a shambles of the morality of liberalism by proving that a cannon factory will do more for the poor than any charity.

Undershaft has returned to the family that he put aside twenty years ago to find that his wife is the same useless social charmer that he knew before he left. Undershaft is also not surprised to find that his son Stephen has grown up to be a fool fit only for politics, or that one of his daughters wants to marry Charles Lomax, an even bigger fool than Stephen.

However, Undershaft is concerned that Barbara, the only member of the family with some sense, has joined the Salvation Army. He vows to win Barbara and her suitor Adolphus Cusins away from the charity and over to his morality of butter through bullets.

With checkbook in hand, Undershaft sets out for Barbara's Salvation Army Soup Kitchen to prove that the poor can be bribed and the army can be bought.

Tickets for Major Barbara may be reserved at the Main Auditorium Box Office weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or by calling 372-2719.

Ticket prices are $1.50 for students, $2.50 for senior citizens and $3.50 for all others.

Lesson from Aloes in Joe E. Brown

A Lesson From Aloes, Athol Fugard's profound drama, will be presented by the University Theatre at 8 p.m. Dec. 1-4 at Joe E. Brown Theater, University Hall.

One of South Africa's best known playwrights, Fugard paints an effective and harrowing portrait of the South African soul. The central symbol for this theme is the aloes, a plant distinguished above all else for its inordinate capacity for survival in the harshest of possible environments.

A Lesson From Aloes was awarded the N.Y. Drama Critics Award for Best Play of the Year.

The action takes place in a house in the white district of Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in 1963. The house is owned by a liberal Africaner, Piet Bezuidenhout, played by Stan Friedman of Springfield, and his wife Gladys, played by Melissa Murphy of Cincinnati.

Piet has been involved in an anti-apartheid activity; Gladys is recovering from a nervous breakdown brought about by a police raid on their home. They are waiting for a black family to come to dinner, a forbidden act in South Africa. The black family never arrives, but the head of the family, Steve Daniels, played by Keith Glover of the Bronx, New York, does arrive. Steve has just been released from prison and plans to flee South Africa after first confronting Piet with the charge of betraying him and the revolution.

Tickets can be purchased at the Joe E. Brown box office beginning at 7 p.m. on performance nights. All tickets are $1; there are no reserved seats.

Annual tree lighting ceremony Dec. 1

Because of the holiday recess, Christmas comes early to Bowling Green. This year, the holiday season will be heralded in on Dec. 1 by one of the oldest of University traditions - the annual tree lighting ceremony.

This year's tree lighting will begin at 6 p.m. in front of the Union. The Men's and Women's choruses will begin the evening activities by performing a selection of holiday songs.

Then, at approximately 6:30 p.m., the switch will be thrown to light the holiday tree. Afterwards, coffee, hot chocolate and cookies will be served in the Commuter Center, basement of Moseley.

The event, of course, is free and open to the public.

Another holiday tradition, the University Activities Organization Christmas Crafts Fair, will be held Nov. 17-19 on the second floor of the Union.

Numerous booths filled with crafts - and potential holiday gifts - will be on display from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Crafts expected to be on display include salt dough ornaments, ceramics, jewelry, crocheted items, dried flower arrangements, soft sculpture faces, candy, wall hangings, and leather items.

Booths by more than 25 artists are expected, and all of the items will be available for purchase.

UAO offering theater, ski trips

Registrations are still being accepted for three trips being planned by the University Activities Organization.

On Tuesday (Nov. 16), UAO will be sponsoring a trip to the Toledo Museum of Art to tour the highly acclaimed "El Greco of Toledo" exhibit. Buses will leave from the Union Oval at 5:30 p.m. that day, and will return at approximately 9:30 p.m. Cost of the trip is $6, and includes transportation and a ticket to enter the museum.

The Toledo Masonic Auditorium is the destination of the second trip planned for Sunday (Nov. 21). The attraction will be a matinee performance of "Hello Dolly," starring Carol Channing. Buses will leave the Union Oval at 1:30 p.m., and will return to campus at approximately 6:30 p.m. Cost of the trip is $21, and includes a ticket and transportation.

Steamboat Springs, Colorado, a popular vacation spot for college students, will be the setting for a ski vacation planned for Jan. 2-9. Cost of the trip is $275, and includes bus transportation, lodging and lift tickets. Meals are not included.

The first 50 students to register will also have the opportunity to obtain ski equipment for the trip for free.

A $50 deposit is due at the time of registration, with the balance being paid by Dec. 2. In addition, one hour of academic credit can be obtained through the School of HPER.

Additional information about all of the trips can be obtained by contacting the UAO office, third floor of the Union.

WSA to present Europe to America

"America Goes European" is the theme of the first European Night to be held from 8 p.m. to midnight Dec. 1 at St. Thomas More, 425 Thurston.

Free and open to the public, the evening will feature ethnic food and entertainment. More than 50 students from 17 European nations are involved in the project.

The night is designed to familiarize Americans with European culture, and give them a chance to sample European foods, view arts and crafts, and participate in ethnic folk dances and other activities.

All 17 nations will be represented in booths, where informational brochures and posters will be distributed, and other ethnic-oriented activities held.

Students from various countries will also be making a number of demonstrations, including an exhibit of French folk songs and Greek "sirtaki" dances. However, the highlight of the evening will be a presentation by a professional Hungarian folk dancing group from Toledo.

At midnight, the evening will conclude with a Vienna waltz.

Don't light up; Take the pledge

The number of smokers who are becoming nonsmokers is on the rise. From 1978 to 1980, the number of persons who have quit smoking has grown from 1.8 million to more than 33 million, and each year millions more quit for at least one day - the day of the "Great American Smokeout."

The American Cancer Society, in cooperation with The Well and University Activities Organization, is sponsoring the sixth annual "Smokeout" on the campus. The challenge is to give up your "cancer sticks" from midnight to midnight on Thursday (Nov. 18).

Last year, an estimated 18 million smokers quit for the day. Of those, 49 percent made it the whole day, 10 percent were not smoking six months later, and seven percent were still nonsmokers 11 months later.

To help a person's willpower this year, members of the Well will have a table set up in University Hall on Thursday. The Well members will have pledge cards which people can sign and will be giving tips on how to keep from smoking.

The costumes make the production in "Major Barbara," performed by University Theatre.

'Major' theater designs

by Joanne Veto
assistant feature editor

If clothes really do make the man, then Dr. Robert Hansen had his work cut out for him. Dr. Hansen, chair of the theater department, designed the costumes for the Main Auditorium production of "Major Barbara."

Costumes are important to any production, Hansen said, because they convey a message about a character before the actor says a word. To design effective costumes, Hansen estimated spending 100 hours researching, sketching and becoming "incredibly familiar with the play."

Set at the turn of the century, "Major Barbara" examines the roles of wealth and poverty in England as seen through the eyes of a Salvation Army major, Barbara.

Hansen scoured old Sears Roebuck catalogs, books, photographs and manuals for examples of Edwardian clothing before submitting his sketches for the director's approval, he said. He also had to stay within the $300 budget.

"They turned out to be remarkably accurate," he added.

COLOR AND MOBILITY are two key factors in designing, according to Hansen. The colors have to work with the actor's hair and skin coloring, blend with the set and lighting and compliment the other costumes when grouped together in scenes. The costumes should also reflect what a performer does on stage.

"If the character does a cartwheel, the costume should provide sufficient freedom," Hansen said.

That's the job of theater costumer Kevin Kerr. Kerr runs the costume shop in Moseley Hall and was responsible for building, renting or pulling costumes from stock for the play.

Kerr said he built 28 garments, spending about 30 hours on each. Bonnets, capes, skirts and Salvation Army uniforms all had to be sewn. He said he constructed many of the patterns himself.

"Simplicity Pattern Co. just doesn't stock Salvation Army patterns," he said.

CUTAWAY JACKETS, tuxedo pants and a 1908 top coat had to be rented. The remaining costumes were pulled from the costume shop and altered, according to Kerr.

A special bonnet that could be split in half was made for one of the Salvation Army characters, Hansen said.

"In one scene, there's a fight and we had to construct a hat that could be easily detached from the character's head," he added.

The costumes draw a distinction between the upper and lower class characters and provide the final visual appeal the director needs to reach the audience.

The finished products add what sophomore music major Ron Guthrie calls "the final touch."

Guthrie said the costumes he wears add to his character and that he felt more like his character, Adolphus Cusins, when in costume.

"CUSINS IS the intellectual type, a college prof. He's what you could call Bohemian," Guthrie said. "His clothes give him that kind of look, especially with the glasses."

Compared with the other male characters, Cusins dresses casually, usually wearing olive green corduroy slacks, a shirt complete with a paper collar and tie, Guthrie added.

"The collars are high and rounded, just like the kind worn at the turn of the century," he said, adding they are more uncomfortable than the collars worn today.

Even more uncomfortable is the Salvation Army bass drum Guthrie has to wear in one scene that is "terribly restricting."

He said the formal clothing is particularly important for the time period. The costumes require the actors to walk and carry themselves differently than they would today. This

Fruit fly center moves to University

staff reporter

terim vice president of Academic Affairs, said.

The center, which is located at 112 Life Sciences, is a stock outlet for approximately 400 different species of fruit flies, Vogt said. He added that it is an international source of flies for basic genetics, genetics engineering, evolution and cancer research.

The Drosophila Center was previously housed at the University of Texas at Austin but it became necessary to move it when the director there left the university, according to Dr. Garrett Heberlein, dean of the Graduate College.

The University was chosen because "we have before us a history of successfully running one of the most effective research stock centers in the world and the most effective insect stock center," Heberlein, the University's representative to the National Science Foundation which decided where to relocate the center, said.

DR. JONG S. YOON, director of the center during his teaching career at the University of Texas at Austin and the center's present director at this university, added the national academic community was unhappy with the handling of the stock center at Austin.

Transportation of the center from Austin to Bowling Green was a very delicate process, Yoon said.

"We had to maintain a temperature of 69 degrees Fahrenheit" all through the time the flies were being transported, he said. Yoon added there was a need for reduced vibration "so as not to disturb the egg-laying process of the flies."

Other conditions that had to be controlled included lighting and the amount of certain chemicals, such as carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide, in the atmosphere.

A similar stock center is already on campus. It is Mid-America Stock Center which is the world's largest source of Drosophila melanogaster, a specific species of fruit fly.

that the Mid-America Stock Center "houses only one species - Drosophila melanogaster - and various strains (of the same species) used strictly for genetic research," Yoon said. "The Species Stock Center will have as many as 400 species in 4,000 different strains of stock."

Heberlein said the combination of the two centers on the University's campus "will further enhance the reputation of the University in terms of genetics. One may begin to associate Bowling Green with genetics."

The new center is funded by a grant to the University from the National Science Foundation, Heberlein said. This grant will total over $200,000 in the next three years.

"Basically, the best we hope for is to break even in this type of thing," he added.

THE DIFFERENCE between the two centers is

Hunger Week to create University's awareness of malnourished nations

by Vicki Reinhart
staff reporter

The poverty levels of people in Third World countries is not often known by people in the wealthy countries of the world, Sister Pat Schnapp, advisor to the Social Justice Committee, said Tuesday.

More than one billion people in the world are seriously undernourished and 15 to 20 million die of hunger-related causes each year, according to the Oxfam-America newsletter.

To make people at the University more aware that over half the population of the world is hungry, the Social Justice Committee is sponsoring World Hunger Week to be held Monday, Nov. 15, through Saturday, Nov. 20, Schnapp said.

Oxfam-America is an international agency dedicated to funding self-help programs in the poverty-stricken countries of the world. They have sent money to teach people how to grow food in the poorest parts of Asia, Africa and Latin America, Sr. Schnapp said. Oxfam has also sent aid to people in Lebanon and Beirut, she said.

The group works on the idea, "give a man a fish and feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish and feed him for a lifetime," Sr. Schnapp said.

THE PROGRAM began in Oxford, England as the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief. Since then the program has expanded from Great Britain to America, Australia, Belgium and Canada, she said. Each group is autonomous, but share ideas and goals, she added.

Events to be held during the week include:

- a video-tape and speaker on Oxfam America by Valerie Myers, the district coordinator of Bread for the World, Monday at 8 p.m. in 207 Hanna Hall.

- a coffeehouse featuring Ray Fogg, Cleveland, and local talent show, Tuesday from 8-11 p.m. in the Amani Room.

- "The Choice is Yours," slide show, presented by Laura Kullemberg, from Oxfam America, Wednesday at 8 p.m. in 207 Hanna Hall

- a soup supper followed by a slide-show and discussion with Dr. John Merriam, associate professor of political science, Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Antioch Room, St. Thomas More.

- prayer for world hunger, Friday at 4:30 p.m. in Prout Chapel.

- a Hunger Awareness Run-a-thon/Walk-a-thon, Saturday, held as a fundraiser for Oxfam America, at 1 p.m. in the Union Oval.

THURSDAY, STUDENTS are asked to donate money or food coupons to Oxfam in containers located in cafeterias and Greek houses, Sr. Schnapp said. The coupons will then be sold at two-thirds their worth and the money will be added to the money collected and sent to Oxfam for use in aid to other countries.

Proceeds from the run-a-thon/walk-a-thon on Saturday will also go to Oxfam, she said. People participating are asked to pay an entrance fee or to get pledges for the time they spend walking or running.

Costumes

enables Guthrie to convey the physical attributes of his character, he said.

RICK BARROWS describes his costumes as elegant. Barrows, a senior theater major, portrays Stephen Undershaft, nemesis of Major Barbara.

"Undershaft is a classical picture of what you expect the devil to be," Barrows said. Dressed in a black cutaway jacket with tails, dark tie, wing collared shirt, curved vest and straight-legged pants, Undershaft sports a brass-tipped cane for a polished look, he said.

Barrows said his outfit gives his character a stilted appearance and agrees with Guthrie that this is essential to the time period.

The costumes are a completion of Undershaft, not an extension, Barrows is quick to point out. "It pulls it right in, like a self-contained package," he said.

He said he had to adapt some of his stage movements because of the costumes. Because of the natural cut of the clothes, he had to make sure to flip the tuxedo tails out of his way before he sat down.

BOTH BARROWS and Guthrie said they became more like their characters when they put on their costumes. For Pam Logan, the character of Lady Britomart comes to life when she puts on her makeup.

Logan said the only problem she encountered with costuming was wearing a whale bone corset. Both she and the character of Major Barbara are "laced in" like Scarlett O'Hara.

"I have no mobility in my spine when they do that. It helps the way I move on stage," she added.

Logan described her character as a matron of the upper class and said her costumes reflect that.

In the first scene, she wears a highcollared, floor length, green dress, complete with several layers of what she termed "fluffy stuff" underneath the dress.

Like Barrows, Logan said the costume fits her character perfectly. She added she didn't have to adjust her portrayal at all.

THE CONTRAST between the Cockney, or lower class, and the upper class is accentuated by the costumes, Logan said. Even though the accents help separate the classes, the costumes make that contrast more apparent, she said.

"The lower class, the people you see at the Salvation Army house, are dressed with rope belts and torn clothes," said Debbie Krainz, a sophomore education major. "When you see them and then see the Undershafts and uppercrust, the difference just hits you in the face," she said. Krainz plays Major Barbara.

She said she had a hard time preventing herself from tripping over the floor length skirts and dresses she wears. Getting used to corsets and petticoats wasn't very difficult for Krainz, but learning to sit in those corsets and petticoats was, she added.

Krainz spends most of her time on stage in the Salvation Army uniform—a high collared white blouse, long stiff blue skirt and matching tailored blue coat. The bonnet that tops the uniform is one of her favorite articles.

SHE SAID getting into costume didn't affect her performance, although it made her more aware of the characters around her. This enabled her to better interact with those characters, she said.

Krainz compared wearing costumes to something she used to do when she was young. "It's kind of like playing dress up," she said.

"Major Barbara" runs Nov. 11-13 and Nov. 17-20 in Main Auditorium, University Hall.

Drives benefit kidney research

by Marcy Grande
reporter

Many University students are involved in product remains collections allegedly designated towards the acquisition of free operating time on a kidney dialysis machine.

Students who are collecting these items may be disappointed to learn their collections are worthless and invalid, officials from Kidney Foundations, said. Contrary to widespread rumors and popular beliefs, these collections are of no value in contributing to the free operation of a dialysis machine.

The most common of these collections include tabs from beverage cans, empty cigarette packs, and proof of purchase seals from virtually all sealed products.

A specific amount of product container parts supposedly constitute a certain allotment of uncharged operating time. For example, one pop can tab is said to obtain one free minute of operating time.

THE KIDNEY Foundation of northwestern Ohio, located in Maumee, Ohio, was contacted for information concerning the validity of the collections. Official spokesperson Mary Des denied any truth to the matter, adding the local Toledo Kidney Foundation has been trying to trace down the source of the rumors, but has been unsuccessful.

"In fact," Des said, "there is almost no reason for patients to receive such contributions because the government, through Medicare, funds 80% of dialysis machine operating costs. The remaining 20% of the expenses are supplied through private health insurance, Medicaid, or Hillburton hospital funding."

"For those patients who have no private health insurance, or are ineligible for alternative monetary health care aid, payment plans are available and are relatively inexpensive," Des added. "No one is refused kidney dialysis treatment."

LOCAL KIDNEY foundations in greater Cincinnati and Dayton also claim the rumors to be completely untrue. Executive Secretary of the Cincinnati Foundation Mary Seta said that she had been receiving calls from collectors asking what they should do with pop can tabs.

"I have no idea what to do with them," Seta said.

Nearly every week, the kidney foundations receive calls regarding the situations, and they are at a loss on how to cease such invented falsehoods from spreading. Also, spokespersons from hospitals where dialysis machines are located said they know nothing about the subject.

In an effort to verify the reports of the Ohio Foundations, the National Kidney Foundation in New York City was contacted. Gigi Altieri, the foundation's public relations editor, confirmed the facts and said the National Foundation has been aware if such rumors for 30 years.

"IT IS impossible to track down the source," Altieri said. "One person who collects gives their collections to a friend of a friend of a friend who supposedly knows someone receiving treatment on a dialysis machine, but the chain of collectors appears to be never-ending."

When the influx of phone calls is at its peak, the NKF sends out press releases declaring the rumors absolutely false. Even Dear Abby has run a column indicating the fictitious data. But the increased collections are evidence that people refuse to believe the facts, Altieri said.

Falcons reach final obstacle in path to title

by Joe Menzer
sports editor

Bowling Green needs no more incentive to beat Eastern Michigan when the two Mid-American Conference teams square off at 1:30 p.m., tomorrow, at Doyt Perry Field.

The Falcons gained all the incentive they needed last weekend, when a 28-7 victory over Ball State — coupled with Miami's 23-0 romp over Central Michigan — vaulted BG into the MAC's top spot. Now, a win over EMU means an outright MAC championship and a trip to the Dec. 18 California Bowl in Fresno, Calif., for the Falcons.

"We're going to play a very positive, rough, intense football game. They (BG's players) know what's on the line," BG head coach Denny Stolz said. "They don't have to be reminded of what they're playing for."

ALTHOUGH IT has all been said before — primarily before the BG-Kent State game two weekends ago — Stolz emphasized that Eastern is much better than its 1-8 overall record indicates.

EMU, until last weekend the holder of the nation's longest collegiate losing streak at 27 games, is 1-6 in the conference. The Hurons snapped their notorious losing streak with a 9-7 victory over Kent in Ypsilanti, Mich., just last Saturday.

"I think I'm happy they won; I'll let you know Saturday night. Usually, I like to play a team after they lose," Stolz said.

The Records: The Mid-American Conference title is on the line for the Falcons, who are 6-2 both overall and in the league. The Hurons, fresh off their first win since an 18-16 conquest of the Falcons in the second game of the 1980 season, are 1-6 in the MAC and 1-8 overall.

The Series: BG leads, 9-7-1. The Falcons won last year at Rynearson Stadium in Ypsilanti, Mich., 28-0.

"They're a very, very fine offensive football team. Obviously, they're having trouble in the scoring zone. They were 0-8 and had out-gained all of their opponents — I had never seen anything like it.

"TWO MONTHS AGO, I said Eastern was the best second division team in the league — and they are. We're going to have to play awfully well to beat this team. I think we're going to have to play a lot better than people realize."

Still, Stolz said many of the same things before playing winless Kent by one, to Northern Illinois by 10, and to Ball State by nine.

And, even though they are mired in the bottom of the MAC standings, the Hurons are in the middle of the pack in most statistical categories. EMU is they've lost a lot of games and they don't score many points."

EMU has a 1,000-yard passer in sophomore quarterback Steve Coulter, although he has completed just 44 percent of his passes and has

BG-EMU SHOWDOWN

The Site: Doyt Perry Field. Capacity: 30,000. Kickoff time is set for 1:30 p.m.

Players to Watch: In their last home game, watch for BG seniors Chip Otten (tailback), Andre Young (defensive tackle), Terry Gyetvai (linebacker), John Meek (tight end), Shawn Potts and Greg Taylor (both wide receivers) all to possibly have big games.

No one is quite sure who to watch for EMU, a team that often appears lost on both offense and defense.

Injury Update: Already with three regulars out of the lineup — tailback Bryant Jones (broken arm), defensive end Larry Stratton (torn knee ligaments) and safety Jac Tomasello (chip fracture in the spine) — the Falcons played much of last Saturday's Ball State game without guard Greg King, linebacker Mark Emans and defensive end Troy Dawson. Dawson will definately be back for at least part of tomorrow's game, and BG's coaching staff is hopeful that Emans and King will be able to play some as well. Tomasello dressed for last weekend's game and will do the same tomorrow, but it remains highly doubtful that he will see any actual playing time.

The Hurons, other than being without Ricky Calhoun — their number one tailback — appear to be fairly healthy.

State. The Falcons demolished the Golden Flashes, 41-7, at Kent.

To a certain extent, though, the Hurons are much better than their dismal record indicates. Before defeating Kent, EMU suffered consecutive losses to Central Michigan by five points, to Toledo by one, to Ohio fifth in both total offense and total defense, while the Falcons are second in both.

"EASTERN IS building a program. They've played well enough to be about .500 in this league," Stolz said. "Obviously, they move the ball. They have just two stats against them — tossed only one touchdown pass.

Tailback Derrick Tolliver has done a good job since stepping in for an injured Ricky Calhoun. Calhoun gained 673 yards before being injured in the Hurons' sixth game. Since then, Tolliver has stepped in and he now has gained 502 yards on the season.

NONETHELESS, it will be tough for Eastern to break its non-scoring habit against the Falcons, who have given up just six touchdowns in the last six games. Four of those scores weren't even the defense's fault.

Stolz has kept busy this week trying to convince his players that they haven't yet clinched a Cal Bowl appearance. That is much easier said than done, especially when Stolz has a Cal Bowl hat wrapped in plastic sitting on a table right behind his desk.

"I haven't had the guts to put it on yet; maybe Saturday night," he said. "If we win, I might just wear it the rest of the weekend."

By the way, Fresno State clinched the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship with a 31-14 victory over Cal State-Fullerton, last Saturday. Thus, the Bulldogs will have a homefield advantage over the MAC representative in the Cal Bowl.

Right now, the Falcons don't care. They just hope to be there to play on Dec. 18.

"They can smell it," Stolz said. "I don't think I've ever been around a group of kids who wanted a championship more."

BG icers renew rivalry with Ohio State

by Tracy Collins
editor

It is the oldest rivalry in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, and it will see its 61st renewal tonight, as the Ohio State Buckeyes invade the Ice Arena to take on Bowling Green's hockey team. The two teams will play in Columbus tomorrow night.

The Falcons (6-1-1, 6-0 in the CCHA) are ranked second in the nation on the WMPL-radio poll, behind fellow-CCHA member Michigan State (8-0, 6-0 in the conference). It is the first time two CCHA members have simultaneously been rated that highly in the history of the league. Ohio State is sixth in the league, with a 3-3 mark.

BG goaltender Mike David said he and his teammates are well-aware of the importance of the series.

"The race — the way it's going — no team can afford to drop a game,"

David said. "Ohio State is an easy team to get up for."

BG takes a 39-21 all-time record against Ohio State into the series. The Falcons were 3-1 against OSU last season, and David played three of his best games of the season in BG's victories.

The Falcons turned in a pair of 5-2 victories in Columbus, while splitting at home — losing 6-5 before David turned in his only regular-season shutout on the second night, giving BG a 6-0 victory.

In the Buckeyes' lone victory, their winning goal was an empty-net score with less than a minute left, when they held a 5-4 lead. BG's Dave O'Brian scored shortly afterward, and Buckeye goaltender John Dougan made a great save on Mike Pikul with just five seconds left to preserve the OSU victory.

That game was indicative of the type of battles the two teams have waged over the years. Thirty of the 60 games played have been decided by two goals or less, and eight have been decided in overtime (with the Falcons winning three).

BG coach Jerry York said he knows his team will be ready to play a rival like Ohio State.

"The rivalry is a key to both teams' motivation," York said. "It is one of the key rivalries on our schedule — but it is a traditional rivalry. I can't say that it is our chief rival, like a Michigan State, but it is certainly our oldest rival."

Both schools are charter members of the CCHA, and they played each other four times per season even before the league was formed. What is unique about the meetings this season is that the teams will now play two home-and-away series.

The Falcons will enter the series with the league's most potent offense, which boasts the top two scorers — Brian Hills (7-10-17) and Dan Kane (8-7-15) — and Kane is the leading goal scorer in the CCHA. Peter Wilson (4-7-11), Garry Galley (3-7-10) and John Samanski (3-6-9) combine with Hills and Kane to give BG five of the top nine scorers in the league. Goaltender Mike David's 2.67 goals-against average makes him the third-ranked goalie in the league.

OSU's scoring leaders are defenseman Dave Kobryn (2-9-11) and forward Paul Pooley (5-2-7). Dougan has returned to play solid in goal for the Buckeyes, and he is sixth in the CCHA with a goals-against average of 3.48.

York said his team is in generally good health, except for the injury to forward Tim Hack, which will keep him sidelined for about a month.

ONE MENZ OPINION

More than a title on line tomorrow

Much is at stake for Bowling Green's optimistic football team as it prepares for tomorrow's Mid-American Conference finale against Eastern Michigan at Doyt Perry Field.

Obviously, the MAC title and a subsequent trip to the Dec. 18 California Bowl in Fresno, Calif., are on the line. The MAC crown is the Falcons' to win - or to lose.

Also, tomorrow's 1:30 p.m. contest is BG's last home game in a season in which home attendance has never been more important. The Falcons, in conjunction with the Mid-American Conference as a whole, are hoping to be re-classified to Division I-A by the National Collegiate Athletic Association at the end of this season.

To be in I-A by the NCAA's latest standards, the MAC schools in question must average at least 17,000 in home attendance this season.

Before the season, many MAC officials said that they considered BG to be the key to the MAC's re-classification fortunes. If the Falcons could break the 17,000 barrier in home attendance, they said, the whole conference might just be able to get over the I-A hump.

by Joe Menzer
Sports Editor

Whether or not that pre-season assessment was a correct one remains to be seen. Toledo and Central Michigan are currently the only two MAC schools classified in I-A. For the league as a whole to qualify for I-A, at least six schools must be classified in that division.

That means that four teams, one of which would have to be the Falcons, must get re-classified by the NCAA after this season. The MAC's best bets to do that appear to be BG, Miami, Western Michigan and either Ohio University, Northern Illinois or Ball State.

It will no doubt be a close count; the NCAA will make certain of that.

Going into tomorrow's encounter with Eastern, the Falcons have an unofficial home attendance average of 19,303 this season. BG therefore needs roughly 7,700 paying customers for tomorrow's game to finalize that magic 17,000 average.

But BG athletic department officials don't hide the fact that they actually would like to get many more than 7,700 fans out to Perry Field tomorrow.

"The key factor is that we don't feel comfortable at all going in (to the NCAA re-classification appeal) with an average of just over 17,000," said Allan Chamberlin, University sports information director. "Our goal all along has been to average 18,000. We wanted some cushion there - just in case the NCAA doesn't accept all of our paid attendance figures."

"We are optimistic that they will accept everything, but there is always that chance that they won't. A crowd of about 15,000 Saturday will give us the cushion we need."

With an outright MAC football title on the line, a crowd of 15,000 should not be hard to achieve.

In fact, if BG's first real shot at an outright football crown in 18 years can't stir at least that many fans out of their homes, this town doesn't deserve a team as good as the 1982 Falcons.

Cagers open at home next week

Bowling Green's men's basketball team is in its fourth week of pre-season practice, and will get its first outside experience next Thursday when the Falcons host Laurentian in an exhibition game at Anderson Arena.

Tickets for the Laurentian exhibition game are on sale daily at the Memorial Hall ticket office. It is not part of the season ticket or student all-sports package.

The Falcons' progress during the pre-season period was somewhat hindered by the absence of two returning starters, 6-foot-5 junior wing David Jenkins and 6-8 senior center Lamar Jackson. Jenkins had a severely sprained ankle and Jackson had a broken bone in his hand.

JENKINS HAS had his cast removed, but has yet to begin practice. Jackson should have his cast removed sometime this week. Their status is on a day-by-day basis.

Assuming that Jenkins and Jackson return to full strength by the start of the season, their injuries could work as a plus for BG, according to BG head coach John Weinert.

"If David and Lamar are back to full health, their injuries have probably helped our team," Weinert said. "With David and Lamar out, it has given Keith Taylor, Ken Waddell, Paul Abendroth and Joe Harrison more playing time. We had to delay putting in some new things offensively and defensively, but the extra playing time for our young players has to help."

THE FALCONS open regular season play on Saturday, Nov. 27, at Cornell. Then, after playing at Kansas on November 29, the Falcons will open their home season against Chico State, a strong Division II team from California, on Thursday, Dec. 2. The Chico State game is the first of five straight home games for BG. They host Ferris State on Dec. 4, Murray State on Dec. 6, DePaul on Dec. 10 and St. Bonaventure on Dec. 14.

BG winds up pre-Christmas action in the Illini Classic in Champaign, Ill., on Dec. 17-18. The Falcons will face Missouri Valley Conference favorite Illinois State in the opening round of that tournament. Illinois and Southern Illinois are also in the field.

BG opens Mid-American Conference action on Jan. 5 against defending MAC champion Ball State in Muncie, Ind.

THE FALCONS finished second to Ball State in the MAC regular season standings last year. The Falcons' 10-6 mark earned them second place.

In the last three years, the Falcons have the best record in the MAC, having finished second, tied for first, and second again. BG is 31-17 over the last three years in league games. Also, the Falcons have now put together four straight winning seasons for the first time in 30 years.

To stretch that streak to five winning seasons and to contend for the MAC Championship, the Falcons must replace 1981-82 leading scorer Marcus Newbern, who won first team All-MAC honors last season.

Also gone are John Flowers, who overcame several serious knee injuries to start most of the last two seasons for the Falcons, reserve guard Guy Neal, and wing Bill Szabo, who has left school. However, nine lettermen are back this year.

Weinert said he is pleased with his team's depth.

"From one through twelve, this is the best team we've had since I've been at BG," Weinert said. "We have a very competitive situation in practice, and we have more quality players who I would not hesitate to use in any game situation."

The injuries to Jackson and Jenkins have a disrupting factor in pre-season camp, but the news is better on Colin Irish.

Greetings to you in the name of Jesus Christ,

We the B.G.S.U. Gospel Choir are extending an open invitation to everyone to join us in praising the Lord through song on Sat. Nov. 13, 1982 in Kobacker Hall at 8 pm. Admission is $1.00 in advance and $1.75 at the door.

The purpose of this concert is not geared toward the B.G.S.U. students only, but to the entire community and its surrounding areas. Because of the many problems that exist in today's society, we want those who come out to hear the choir, to be encouraged to hold on and "DON'T GIVE UP", which happens to be the theme of this year's concert.

As a special attraction this year, there will be the addition of a mini orchestra, featuring Tyrone Vernon, who has composed much of the music for the event.

Upset: Kickers make finale a success

by Tom Hisek
sports reporter

A better script couldn't have been written for Bowling Green's soccer team yesterday afternoon as they finished their 1982 season with a stunning, 2-1 overtime upset over highly-regarded Evansville at Mickey Cochran Field.

Neil Ridgway's penalty kick into the right side of the Evansville net with 1:32 left in the first overtime period gave the Falcons the victory in the rain-drenched match. The shot off Ridgway's right foot brought down four Falcon records, as it settled in the strings of the Aces' goal.

RIDGWAY'S 10th goal of the season not only gave the Falcons the record for most wins in a season with 12, but also set three individual marks for the junior center midfielder:

- With 25 career goals, Ridgway surpassed Dennis Mephram's mark of 24, set from 1976-79.

- With 29 points for the season, Ridgway broke his own record of 28, which he set just last year.

- With 66 career points, Ridgway is now BG's all-time leading scorer - surpassing Mephram's mark of 65 points. Ridgway still has one more year of play remaining.

IT WAS a total team effort for the Falcons as they gave Evansville their first loss in 19 matches. Evansville had gone 15-0-4 since a season-opening, 3-1 loss to Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. Even with yesterday's loss, Evansville is expected to receive a bid to the National Collegiate Athletic Association soccer tournament.

"It was a nice way for the team to end the season," BG coach Gary Palmisano said. "Wins like this make you want to coach for a lifetime."

"Sweet revenge" was the thought as BG earned their first victory over Evansville in four attempts and also evened up the score on the Falcons' 1-0 loss to the Aces last season in Evansville.

Bad luck was the devil in the last year's match, when Ridgway missed the first penalty kick of the season; putting his shot wide of the goal. But Evansville goalie Tom Dragon may have been part of the reason as he used a delay strategy to throw off Ridgway's timing.

"WHEN I got called to do the shot I wasn't nervous. But I got nervous when the goalie started adjusting his gloves and wasting time, because that's the same thing he did last year," Ridgway said. "I used the same approach I do for all my penalty kicks - I always go the goalie's right and I put it in."

Palmisano couldn't have been happier with Falcon co-captain.

"It's called being a big-money player," he said. "Not only did he come back from last year when he missed the penalty kick, but he got the records, too."

BG played an even game with Evansville throughout the first half as the Falcons used a brisk wind to help keep the ball in Evansville's zone. But the Aces scored the match's first goal with 19:06 left in the first half.

Evansville's Just Jensen set up Ken McNamara with a fine centering pass right inside the goalie box. BG keeper Joe Koury came out to lessen the angle, but was a second too late as McNamara put the ball past him and sent him sprawling in vain.

PALMISANO said he had no doubts that the Falcons could match the Aces' offensive output, but that it was just a matter of adjusting BG's game plan to counter the zone defense employed by Evansville.

"Evansville used an offside trap, in which the four backs play straight across the field for the entire match. They form a line moving back and forth down the field, going wherever the ball goes," Palmisano said.

They were having a hard time generating any offense, so we were only concerned with the offensive trap. When you play a zone against a passing team (the style of play BG employs), it is not that effective."

The second half was played in a driving rainstorm, with neither team mounting any serious threats until Mark Jackson headed a shot past Evansville's scrambling goalie.

BOB THEOPHILUS fed Jackson from the baseline with a pinpoint pass that Jackson lunged at, and then shot past Dragon for his seventh goal of the season.

For the rest of the match, Evansville was held scoreless by BG's defense, which hasn't been free of injuries since Oct. 5 when Pat Kenney injured his foot in the Falcons' game at Dayton. BG has been plagued by numerous defensive injuries since that game.

"Pat Kenney did a great job, even though he isn't 100 percent back from the injury," Palmisano said. "Credit also has to be given to Tod Johnson. He's played up front for his entire life and then he's asked to play a back position for 6-7 games."

Bowling Green soccer standout Bob Theophilus leaps over Evansville's Rune Bjoro while keeping his eye on the ball in yesterday's 2-1 overtime victory at Mickey Cochran Field.

SportsBriefs

Senior fullback Tom Glendening and senior defensive tackle Andre Young have been chosen as Bowling Green's captains for tomorrow's 1:30 p.m. game with Eastern Michigan at Doyt Perry Field, Coach Denny Stolz announced today.

The Falcons can win their first outright Mid-American Conference championship in 18 years if they can beat EMU. The Falcons are 6-2 both overall and in the league games, and have a perfect 4-0 record at Perry Field.

Glendening and Young have both played regularly for three years. Glendening was the starting fullback as a sophomore and junior, and was the starter at the beginning of this season.

Young is one of the best defensive linemen in the MAC. Not particularly big for a tackle at 6-2, 220 pounds, he is exceptionally quick. He ranks among the leaders in the MAC in tackles for losses with 15 tackles behind the line of scrimmage, accounting for 70 lost yards.

Bowling Green's volleyball team will conclude its 1982 season tonight and tomorrow in the Mid-American Conference Championship in Athens. BG qualified for the MAC Championship by compiling the second best record in the eastern division of the MAC.

Miami is undefeated in the eastern division, while BG is 5-3. The Falcons are 17-25 overall.

In the opening round of the tournament, the Falcons will face the number three seeded team from the western division, either Ball State or Western Michigan, at 12:30 p.m. today.

If BG wins its opening round game, the Falcons will play the top seeded western team in the semi-finals to-night at 5:30 p.m.
